DERRY AIR

Ulster traditional

Perhaps the most familiar piece of music in this collection because of its use as the melody for "Danny Boy" - love it or hate it, the quintessential "Irish" ballad (with words by an English actor named Fred Weatherly, who evidently never set foot in Ireland).

The original melody was collected by a Miss Jane Ross from an itinerant musician in the region of Limavady in County Derry sometime in the middle of the 19th Century. Regardless of the abuse it has had to endure over the years (nothing quite matches the experience of listening to a pub singer approaching the high note with the sure and certain knowledge that he/she will strike at it and fall off backwards), the melody remains unparalleled for its beauty and serenity.
