

DIALOGUE ---> TRUTH (SOCRATES)

Another fictional example of two IRTRAD posters attempting and failing to reach agreement on something.

> I think the third ornament in Séamus Kramden's version of "Slice the Zucchini" is probably a roll.

>> Is not. Any dummy can hear it's a cran. Even my dog can hear it's a cran. The guy who picks up the garbage on Tuesday morning said to me "Hey, nice cran in 'Slice the Zucchini' " - and he's not even Irish!

> Leaving aside the unpleasant but not surprising innuendo, I remain convinced it's a roll. A big fat juicy roll. If you and your dog and your garbageman think it's a cran, I can only pray for deliverance from terminal stupidity for all three of you.

>> My horoscope mentioned something about having to deal with tone-deaf blockheads who know nothing about Irish music. I'm doing my best to remain calm and collected in the face of your well-nigh impenetrable ignorance, but it's not going well just now.

> You know, I never liked you. You're a pompous nit-picky know-it-all. Cran, roll. . .who cares? Bet I play more tunes than you!

>> Do NOT!

> Do TOO!

>> Do NOT!

> Do TOO!

(Just think - this exchange and many like it will remain in the IRTRAD archive until the Crack of Doom or until the server blows up, whichever comes first. Can't we all just get along? Anybody been to any good sessions lately?)
