

TUNE TITLES FOR THE 21st CENTURY (AND BEYOND)

Don't get me wrong - O'Neill's books are great books. But his tune titles are so (yawn) nineteenth-century. We can fix that, do a little quiet updating here and there, per the following suggestions:

Palpating the Prostate

Marriage on the Rocks

Pull the Knife and Stick It again, Repeatedly (a/k/a "O.J.Simpson's")

When Sick Is It an HMO You Want?

The Unfortunate Cup of Double-Mocha Latte

The Toyota With One Horn

Within a Mile of a Parking Space

The Merry Accountant

Slice the Pastrami

My Love is Fair and Handsome (and Awaiting Her Divorce)

The Contraception Reel

Good Morning to Your Dentures

More Power to Your Laptop

The Dogs Among the Hydrants

Old Hag You Have Sued Me

Apples in Styrofoam

Crabs in the Microwave

The Night We Made the Prenuptial Agreement

The Rights of Woman

King of the Gender Unspecific

Bonaparte's Reluctance to Get Involved

First House in Repossession

Jenny's Welcome to Charlie, Lloyd, and Fred

Maid Behind the Bars

Toss the Salad

McFadden's Colonoscopy

See how easy it is? No more obscure references to agricultural implements, etc. (What the heck is a "gudgeon" anyway?) These titles are so NOW!
