Kilbaha is on the Clare side of the Shannon estuary. Looking across to the Kerry side, you can see the famous 'Cliffs of Dooneen' that the song celebrates. In the days of sail Kilbaha was the location where the Shannon pilots would board incoming vessels, hence the title of the great shipwreck ballad 'The Five Pilots of Kilbaha' ('the wind sang high on the rocky coast, to the dance of the restless tide. . .') The pilot station is now a few miles upriver at Kilrush.
